GREENEVILLE, Sept. 26, 1879. Another bright and beautiful day greeted the citizens of Greeneville, and at an early hour in the morning the people from the country began to crowd the streets of the town and roads leading to the fair ground. Every vehicle was brought into requisition, and all were crowded to their utmost capacity. Mr. S. H. Anderson, of Jonesboro', had his large omnibus here, in which from twenty-five to forty persons could be transported to the grounds at one time. He informed us that he had thoroughly prepared for the Jonesboro' Centennial, and that he had now in readiness conveyances inough to send out forty persons at one load. He has slso hitching room in his livery stable for ever one hundred and fifty heads of horses. He will treat his patrons right Arriving at the grounds, we found everything lively and already a very large crowd in attendance. We noticed also that several additions had been made in the different departmonts of display.

June 17, 1879, COPY-

From the New York Tribune. A useful collection of public decuments is ablished by A. S. Barnes & Co. in "The Con-itudin of the Several States of the Union and United States" prior to the commencement of the Civil War. The volume also includes the Declaration of Independence, the Artic es of Confederation and an Ersey on Recent Changes in American State Constitutions, by Wilmot L. Warren. The comparative views which it presents of the Constitutions of the different states render it a convenient book of reference, and an almost indippensable addition to the political
